Graduate Assistantship

All traditional track M.H.A. students are encouraged to work as graduate assistants in health service or public health organizations in the community to acquire work experience and enrich the learning process through on-the-job application of concepts and techniques learned in the classroom. To qualify for an assistantship, a student must be fully admitted to a degree program, be enrolled as a full-time student, and maintain a 3.00 GPA.

Combination Degrees

The Department of Health Services Policy and Management and the School of Law offer a coordinated program that leads to a J.D./M.H.A. degree. The requirements for the M.H.A. portion of the combination degree program are the same as shown above. The J.D. portion of the combination degree program is determined by the School of Law. Some courses do fulfill requirements for both portions of the combination degree. A combination degree program thus typically requires fewer semester hours in total than if the two programs were taken separately. Students seeking admission to combination degree programs must meet the admissions requirements of both programs. The M.H.A. requirements are listed above. The School of Law specifies the admission requirements for their program.
