

PORTUGUESE MINOR

---

The minor in Portuguese is an excellent complement for USC students who are majoring in Spanish, international business or any subject with a global reach in the humanities, social sciences, business, health or education. Students study the Portuguese language and Luso-Brazilian cultures through music, film and literature. Students gain transferable skill such as global awareness, cross-cultural literacy and the ability to work with diverse groups, preparing them for employment in fields including international business, government, non-profits, translation, education or the arts. In addition, a background in Portuguese studies benefits those pursuing primary studies or future graduate work in cultural and literary studies, Latin American studies, comparative literature and film.