

ART HISTORY MINOR

The minor in art history offers courses across cultures and periods in the history of art. Students develop skills in theory, research, analysis and criticism. In the minor students learn to research and discuss artworks, movements and periods in art history. Those looking to work in leadership and management roles will find that a minor in art history provides useful skills in analyzing ideas and developing creative solutions. This can be a great addition to majors in business administration, economics, finance and more.
